JUNE 2009

FOUNDATION OF UNDERGRADUATES FOR SEXUAL EQUALITY (FUSE)

During the 2009 school year, FUSE worked collaboratively with departments and organizations on and off campus to engage the Drexel community in support and dialogue around the LBGT experience on campus, in Philadelphia and throughout the nation. Due to their dedication and diligence in working with the Office of Student Life, the Drexel Safe Zone Program [now known as Sexual Equality Training (SET)], was re-established on campus.

FUSE held multiple events on campus that brought to the fore front leading national debates, specifically on the concept of marriage and the experiences of transgender and transsexual students on campus. As a result of their hard work and dedication, FUSE's impact on campus has been tremendous and the membership of their organization has grown to include a variety of Drexel community members including staff, faculty and students of all genders and sexual orientations.

Student Life and the Office of
