Drexel Co-op and Career Guides

FILM AND VIDEO

Description of Major

The broadcast, entertainment and multimedia industries are exploding with new and exciting opportunities. The Film and Video Program at Drexel prepares artists to secure these opportunities and leverage their skills and talent to realize their vision.

The film and video major offers a balance of technical craft and artistic vision that prepares students to pursue professional careers in the film industry. The program is hands-on with ample production opportunities from the first year of study supported by a strong emphasis in the liberal arts and foundations of design. Substantial coursework in screenwriting and cinema studies are part of the program.

Students wanting specific information about the major are encouraged to stop by the department office in Nesbitt Hall, call the department at 215-895-2408 or visit their website at <http://www.drexel.edu/academics/comad/>.
