

ENGLISH

This program is specifically designed to engage students in critical thinking and applied writing skills. The major offers a wide-ranging curriculum on American, British and world literatures. The program also stresses the cultural, historical and social contexts that shape and affect literary production. Drexel's English curriculum is unique because of its integration of humanities with science and technology in several of its courses. Students in this major are prepared for jobs that require strong analytical, communications, technological and writing skills. This major also prepares students for graduate work in law, education, professional writing, the humanities, and various other fields. The Department of English and Philosophy also offers a Certificate in Writing and Publishing, which trains students in professional writing, editing, and publication skills.

Employers who have hired Drexel students include:

Committee of Seventy
Curious Parents Magazine
Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP
Oracle Primavera
PJM Interconnection
Philadelphia Magazine
Philadelphia School District
Spells Writing Center
Unysis

Students wanting specific information about the major are encouraged to stop by the department office in MacAlister Hall, Room 5044, call the department at 215-895-2430/31, or visit their website at www.drexel.edu/engphil/.
