

CULINARY ARTS

The Culinary Arts Major Program prepares students for leadership positions in the fine foods segment of the hospitality industry. This program comprises approximately equal parts liberal arts, business and administration, hospitality management, and culinary arts. Students also receive a minor in business administration as well as completing the first year of foundational courses required for any accredited MBA degree. This incentive allows students to continue their education by taking advantage of many one-year MBA programs currently offered throughout the United States.

In addition, the culinary arts program has taken on an exciting new area of specialization: culinology. The Research Chef's Association defines culinology as a merger between culinary arts and food science. Specific jobs for professionals with skills in culinary arts and culinology include food research and development professionals, corporate R & D chefs, applied food science specialists and chef educators.

Students wanting specific information about the major are encouraged to stop by the department office at 3001 Market Street, call the department at 215-895-2159, or visit their website at www.drexel.edu/academics/goodwin/advisor/contact.asp.
