

WOMAN ONE Scholarship for Minority Women

The Institute for Women's Health and Leadership of Drexel University College of Medicine is pleased to offer four-year scholarships for talented under-represented minority women (African American, Latina, Native American). Scholars will be selected by a scholarship committee on the basis of:

Academic Excellence

Leadership

Future Potential and contribution as a physician (a commitment to practice in underserved areas will also be considered)

Financial Need

Acceptance into Drexel University College of Medicine

The Institute for Women's Health and Leadership is an academic unit within Drexel University College of Medicine. Established in 1993, the Institute addresses the special health needs of women and promotes medical education and research in women's health as well as leadership development for women in medicine. In 1996, the Institute was designated a National Center of Excellence in Women's Health by the US Department of Health and Human Services and in 2005 received the added designation of "Ambassador for Change." Annually, the Institute recognizes women in leadership by presenting the Marion Spencer Fay Award and the Woman One Award, which raises funds for these $15,000-a-year scholarships.

Drexel University College of Medicine (DUCOM) is a not-for-profit subsidiary of Drexel University and is affiliated with Tenet Health System. DUCOM enjoys a rich history representing the union of Hahnemann University and Medical College of Pennsylvania (formerly the historic Woman's Medical College), with staff and faculty who provide an exceptional environment that encourages the intellectual, social, and personal growth of its students.

For more information, contact:

Sherita Glenn, Minority Affairs

Sherita.Glenn@drexelmed.edu, 215.991.8216

DREXEL UNIVERSITY

College of Medicine

Institute for Women's Health & Leadership