

CO-OP & CAREER GUIDES

NURSING

The Bachelor of Science in Nursing prepares graduates for licensure as registered nurses. Students can choose either a five-year or a four-year co-op track. The program includes innovative courses and learning experiences that provide the knowledge and skills needed for success as professional nurses in the rapidly changing, increasingly technological, and evidence-driven healthcare environment of today. Instruction integrates science, humanities, and nursing knowledge and skills, and clinical experiences. Co-op employment opportunities in healthcare and nursing settings are also offered.

For over 100 years, Drexel's nationally ranked College of Nursing and Health Professions has provided a rich environment for students to develop skills in evidence-based practice, teaching, medical informatics, research, and leadership in the healthcare industry.
