Apply for the GSA Graduate Student Domestic Travel Subsidy Award

The Graduate Student Association (GSA), in partnership with the Graduate College, offers a limited number of Graduate Student Domestic Travel Subsidy Awards annually to encourage graduate student presentation at academic meetings and conferences held within the United States and territories (including Puerto Rico).

Effective July 1, 2023, the GSA is funding the subsidy award through a small percentage of student activity fees which make up their annual allocation.

Eligibility

- Must be a current Drexel graduate student enrolled full-time (or part-time) in a doctoral or master's degree program
- Must be in good academic standing
- Must be invited to present an oral research presentation or talk
- Must complete the application with all required materials at least three weeks prior to the first day of travel
- One award per student per fiscal year (July 1, 2023 - June 30, 2024)

Students must submit a completed application via the Drexel Funding Portal (InfoReady), with all required, complete and well-written materials.

Subsidy awards are processed AFTER successful completion of travel and/or presentation through the University's reimbursement request process outlined on the website.
