Social Security Administration	SSA ALJs do not hire law clerks. If they hire a law student, it will be for a position as a decision writer. They are hired on an as needed basis. When a hearing office within a regional office needs a decision writer, they post the job on USA JOBS. From there, the resumes are reviewed by SSA staff at the regional office, but not the ALJ. Decision writers are typically paid GS-7 or GS-9 to start, with the possibility of being promoted all the way to GS-12. When decision writers are hired, it is not a permanent position. It is for a two year term and at the end of it, if both parties agree, it becomes a permanent position. For law students to be hired, they must have graduated and should be in the process of passing the bar.
